

Associate Engineer/Civil Designer Position

Company Description

Civilogistix is a dynamic, fast-paced company. We are growing and seeking to expand our land development design teams. We are engaged in meaningful work that challenges the mind and gives great opportunities for reward. Our firm offers alignment between the project manager and the project owner. We have an entrepreneurial environment where creative thinking is compensated. Our clients appreciate our approach to creating value for them and providing consistent top-quality work. We are licensed in 9 southeastern states, perform a wide variety of services and have clients with a large range of types of projects.

Our primary clients are medium to large developers who have a steady pipeline of projects across the Southeast and have big enough pockets to finance them. They appreciate our strong work ethic and the ability to deliver under the pressure of deadlines. We are an integral part of the exciting rapidly-growing development of the Southeast. Our structure offers unprecedented autonomy and the resources to work directly with the clients from conception to construction, whether you are on a private jet for a site visit or traipsing through mud counting trees.

Our team participates in recreational days and volunteer occasions together. We value your quality of life and work-life balance. We encourage community stewardship, a flexible vacation schedule and career development.

Job Description

We are seeking strongly-motivated individuals with impeccable character and integrity. We need driven, hungry engineers who can't wait to get to work every morning to exceed the client's expectations, solve difficult problems and perform at a high level. We desire leaders who want to succeed in business, not just show up and punch a clock, and innovative collaborators who want to be part of taking Civilogistix to the next level. We are looking for engineers who want to grow their book of business, sharpen their skills and learn new ones without being micromanaged. Qualified candidates should be proactive team players who desire success for Civilogistix and themselves. We offer opportunities for career development, growth, learning and continuing education.

Our land development team is seeking an entry-level Civil Designers to work on land development engineering projects. Candidates should have experience with applicable software applications including AutoCAD Civil3D, hydraflow, and Microsoft applications. Projects will include site design for commercial retail, single/multi-family, healthcare and industrial projects. Other responsibilities will include research/site investigation, project management/coordination, permit submittals and negotiation, and preparing project specifications. In addition to strong technical capabilities, the candidate should have excellent communication skills (both verbal and written), be a strategic thinker, have an entrepreneurial spirit, have the ability to bond quickly with individuals outside of our organization, have a desire to learn and to progress quickly, and must possess good business acumen.

Position Requirements

- BS degree in Civil Engineering
- Experience with Microsoft Office Suite
- AutoCAD Civil3D and Hydraflow experience
- Entrepreneurial spirit
